

A new approach to public administration

ALASDAIR ROBERTS
TRUMAN SCHOOL OF PUBLIC AFFAIRS
UNIVERSITY OF MISSOURI

Scholarly enterprises within PA

"Orthodox" Public Administration	Collaborative Governance
Administrative history	Digital Era Governance
Comparative Administration	Border regions:
Development Administration	Development Studies
New Public Administration	Peacebuilding and Statebuilding
Public Management	American Political Development
Administrative Constitutionalism	Neighboring disciplines:
Neo-Weberianism	Political science
New Public Service	Law
Public Governance	Economics
New Public Governance

The rise of Public Management

Associations:

- Public Management Research Association
- International Research Society for Public Management
- International Public Management Network
- Association for Public Policy Analysis and Management
- Academy of Management, Public and Nonprofit Division

Journals, such as:

- Journal of Public Administration Research and Theory
- Public Management Review
- International Public Management Journal
- Journal of Policy Analysis and Management

Degrees, specializations, courses, textbooks, chairs

Aims of Public Management

"[The] primary purpose [of the field of public management] is to develop a understanding of how public, primarily governmental, organizations may accomplish the missions charged to them." James Perry and Kenneth Kraemer, 1983.

"Public management is about making sure that the resources available are used as effectively as possible to realize state policy goals." Mark Bevir, 2012.

"What is public management? . . . [A]n approach that uses managerial techniques . . . to increase the value for money achieved by public services." Tony Bovaird and Elke Loeffler, 2016.

"Public managers are responsible for translating the goals and objectives of policymakers into tangible operating results. Public management is the process of ensuring that the allocation and use of resources available to government are directed toward the achievement of lawful public policy goals." Carolyn Hill and Laurence Lynn Jr., 2016.

Neglect of big questions

"PA has lost sight of the big picture." Christopher Pollitt, 2016

"[S]uch 'big questions' as the political economy of administrative reform and its evolution over time were a central focus of the field historically. This is no longer the case." Robert Durant and David Rosenbloom, 2016

"[P]ublic administration needs to return to thinking about the 'big picture' rather than the fragments that dominate much of the contemporary work in the discipline." Guy Peters and Jon Pierre, 2016

"There is a need for public administration . . . to address the big issues that contemporary political systems have to deal with." Per Laegreid, 2016

"[B]ig questions about state capacity and legitimacy go largely unaddressed by leading researchers and journals in our field." Brint Milward, 2016

"[I]t is also impossible to ignore the complaints of practitioners and theorists outside the field that public management is missing big trends and the potential for big impacts on big questions." Don Kettl, 2016

Two kinds of myopia

"The study of public administration pays little attention to history. . . . [S]ystematic training in research and methods of administrative history is sorely missing in public administration higher education." Jos Raadschelders, 2010

"[T]he past has been squeezed out of contemporary academic treatments of public management." Christopher Pollitt, 2008

"[P]ublic administration research [is not] taking 'time' anywhere near as seriously as is done by other fields sharing topical interests with public administration." Robert Durant and David Rosenbloom, 2016

"Governance research and teaching run too much behind the facts. It should also be ahead of realities." Geert Bouckaert, forthcoming

Inattention to fragility

Fragile states: those in which fundamental aspects of statehood, such as authority and legitimacy, are not well established

Fragile States Index:

- 53 of 178 states are stable
- 125 of 178 states are fragile
- 66 of 178 states are on "high warning" or "alert" lists
- 9 of 10 most populous states are fragile

And in so-called "stable" states, "big questions" about:

- Border integrity
- Legitimate use of force
- Dysfunctionality of major institutions
- Division between racial and religious groups, social classes, sections

Fragile State Index Rankings
China	Elevated warning
India	Elevated warning
United States	Very stable
Indonesia	Elevated warning
Brazil	Warning
Pakistan	High alert
Nigeria	High alert
Bangladesh	Alert
Russia	High warning
Mexico	Elevated warning

What a new approach must do

Improve our capacity to address big or "regime-level" questions

Challenge the division between fragile and stable states

Improve our historical understanding and self-awareness

Improve our capacity to anticipate new challenges for government

Elements of a new approach

States must address six problems:

- Diplomacy
- External security
- Internal control
- Promotion of human rights
- Financing of activities
- Promotion of economic growth

States develop strategies for prioritizing and addressing these problems

- "Liberal statebuilding," the "China model," the "welfare state"

PA is concerned with development of institutions to execute strategies

Challenges of:

- Design, given uncertainty, inconsistency, controversy
- Consolidation: normative commitment, investment, surrender
- Management: delegation, monitoring, discipline, coordination

The need for adaptation

Changes in environmental variables:

- Rivals and enemies
- People
- Diseases
- Markets
- Technologies
- Weather

Changes in ideas about priorities and techniques of addressing problems

Hence challenges of adaptation: new strategies, new institutions

- Preserving adaptive capacity
- Recognition and anticipation of changing circumstances
- Overcoming "vested interests"

Déjà vu?

" [T]he field of administration . . . needs to be related to [theory about] the role of the state in human affairs. The ends of administration are the ultimate objects of the state itself." Leonard White, 1948

"The idea of the state is the conscience of administration. Seeing every day new things which the state ought to do, the next thing is to see clearly how to do them." Woodrow Wilson, 1887

"Administrative developments . . . cannot be understood unless they are related (1) to their own organic past and (2) to the compulsions of the environment in which they exist." Luther Gulick, 1948

"The state must always be rediscovered . . . Almost as soon as its form is stabilized, it needs to be remade." John Dewey, 1927